

Jasmine was just an average kid in her fifth grade class. She saw that her best friend Mahailah was suffering from getting abused at home because her mom was molesting her. Jasmine saw her other friend Luke was suffering because he was getting beat by his Aunt. Jasmine's nemesis Elizabeth was always going hungry because her parents spent the money they earned on drugs, leaving nothing for her. Jasmine's own dad often tried to lock her in the house when he got crazy, and Jasmine had to come up with more and more creative ways to escape. All four of them fought a lot, comparing their problems and trying to see who had it worse. Jasmine saw that all of their problems were caused by their parent-slavers (parents) and they could join together to fight back against their parents. Jasmine saw that their common abuse was what they would unite around, and they could join together to fight back. Jasmine realized they had a common enemy: their parent-slavers (parents). So Jasmine led her three classmates Mahailah, Luke, and Elizabeth, and they all joined together and fought back.